Welcome to the
Landmark District.

WE ARE

Kelowna's Creative Heart

Over the past 20 years, Kelowna has been undergoing a renaissance. A transformation from an agricultural community into a flourishing centre for commerce and creativity. The Landmark District has helped fuel this change—and undergone our own transformation along the way. Over the past four decades, we have grown from a traditional business district into something more. A hub for innovation and diversity. A growing community eager to connect, collaborate, and thrive.

It's time to embrace all that we've become. It's time to rethink our public spaces to encourage connection and make coming to work a joy every day. It's time to let our creativity shine and nurture pride in our leaders, thinkers, makers, and doers. It's time to continue what we started. We are at the heart of a bright future. A future that honours everything we love about Kelowna while moving it forward.

A Community
Driven by Connection

A Hub for Business and Creativity

Located in the geographic centre of Kelowna, the Landmark District is also at the core of our city's future. Entirely planned, built, and managed by Stober Group, our growing community is filled with a diverse mix of businesses, as well as art, food, and culture. It's a welcoming, ever-changing environment designed by and for the people of Kelowna.

1957

Al Stober founds his namesake company, Al Stober Construction. His early projects demonstrate his deep commitment to innovation, service, and quality, setting the tone for the six decades to come.

1980s

After two decades focusing on residential properties, Al is early to recognize a need for Class A office space in the Kelowna area. He dismisses downtown sites due to cost and a shortage of parking and zeroes in on the land that now is Landmark District.

1990s

Al's vision of a new commercial centre gains momentum, and initial land-use contracts are put into place. A trip to Phoenix convinces him that taller concrete buildings, rather than short wood-framed ones, will better position Kelowna for the future.

1995

Landmark 1, the district's first building, opens its doors. A major government agency and the accounting firm Crowe Mackay become early tenants, sparking an influx of businesses from downtown.

1997

Demand grows for office space within the Landmark District, prompting the construction of Landmark 2—Kelowna's tallest building at the time. Tenants are attracted by the convenient location and well-maintained buildings, as well as Al Stober Construction's fair pricing and responsiveness as a landlord.

2000s

In collaboration with the city, Al Stober Construction grows the district into a dynamic business hub. Landmark 3, 4, and 5 target the emerging tech industry, with built-in infrastructure and networks connecting businesses within the district.

2012

The completion of Landmark 6, an impressive 18-storey building, significantly elevates the district's skyline, pushing the boundaries of height in the area.

2017

While walking in the district, Al's daughter, Carolyn, stumbles due to the lack of sidewalks. She initiates conversations about making the entire Landmark District more walkable and welcoming, leading to a bold new vision of an urban community that's vibrant day and night.

2019

With the involvement of the second generation of the Stober family, the Landmark District moves closer to its future as a complete urban neighbourhood. The District Market opens, bringing new food options and new life to the area.

2022

Landmark 7 is completed. The district's flagship tower, it epitomizes the modern workplace with cutting-edge boardrooms, an exclusive fitness centre, and 8,000 square feet of convention space.

2022

Stober Group also opens the Tree of Hope Plaza, an inviting space for locals to walk through, linger in, and enjoy. The public plaza offers new opportunities for community events, as well as pedestrian access to the District Market and the Parkinson Recreation Centre.

2024

Over the course of four decades, The Landmark District has redefined Kelowna's urban landscape, becoming a sought-after business destination, a lively community, and a home for local events, including the Kelowna Farmers' and Crafters' Market.

A Dynamic City-Within-a-City

At Stober Group, we're on a mission to transform the Landmark District into a world-class community that people will be proud to work, live, and play in for generations to come.
